NEARLY 200 SCOUTS WILL PARTICIPATE IN CO. CAMPOREE

Boys Will Be On Their Own
During Two-Day
Affair

TO CAMP IN "PUP-TENTS"

Judge Boyer To Speak At
The Tree Planting
Ceremonies

Boy Scouts, "Learn By Doing."

Scouting has always endeavored to train boys to be able to go out on their own, and take care of themselves. Nearly two hundred Scouts will participate in the 1934 County Camporee at Bowman's Hill, Washington Crossing Park on Friday, 6 p. m., until Saturday, June 3, 1934, 6 p. m., d. s. t. The Scouts will camp overnight in "pup tents" or other types of shelter, entirely, on their own without any leaders showing them how to do things.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer of the Bucks County Courts will be the speaker at the annual tree planting ceremonies, on Saturday afternoon. The Judge will plant the tree commemorating the occasion. During the ceremonies, the winners of the camporee will be announced. The other parts of the general program include a monster campfire on Friday evening at 9.30 p. m., a craft project period, and five specialty tours on Saturday morning. The Camporee is conducted by the Bucks County Boy Scout Council by the camping committee of which Arthur M. Eastburn is the chairman, Scout Executive William F. Livermore will direct the large corps of judges who will carefully record the work of each patrol.

The Camporee determines those patrols that are worthy of the 1934 Regional Standard Rating of 850 points. By achieving Standard, the patrols will be eligible to attend the third region camporee at Herring Run Park, Baltimore, Md., on Friday, August 17th, Saturday, August 18th, and Sunday, August 19th. Only those Scouts attending the 1934 County Camporee will be eligible to go to Washington, D. C., in 1935, to participate in the 25th anniversary celebration of the Boy Scouts of America. At the national birthday gathering in the national capital, over 25,000 Boy Scouts will be camping for over a week in a great American Jamboree. President Franklin D. Roosevelt has offered the co-operation of all branches of the government to make the Jamboree, a success, and to make of it an expression of the activities of American Youth.

According to the reports from the various troop leaders every town in the county will be represented; from Quakertown to Riegelsville, down through New Hope and Doylestown, from Morrisville to Andalusia, and including Bristol. It is going to be a gathering of "the Bucks County Lads." The public is cordially invited to visit the Camporee at any time.

The Scouts are expected to arrive on Friday night with various items of required equipment. The equipment will be suitable for sleeping overnight, and preparing two meals. The patrols of four or more boys will be assigned camping sites according to the amount of the required equipment, they have gathered together to enter the contest. In order to help the troop just starting in the Camporee or not in a position to gather all of the required equipment, there has been developed a plan of three classes known as "A," "B" and "C." There is also the Class "D" for the troops that have boys who are in the camporee from more than one patrol.

Each patrol will be checked on pack appearance, proper method of carrying packs, personal cleanliness, pack waterproof, distribution of all equipment, locating shelter, locating fire, wood cutting place and care, latrine location and construction, final clean-up, care of personal equipment, preparing shelter, beds, tools, first aid materials, good menu, food supplies, food storage, cooking and serving, cleanliness, use and care of tools, use and care of latrines, care of water, care and disposal of garbage, promptness on patrol schedule, patrol camp activities, improvising equipment, patrol organization, attention duties, Scoutlike conduct, leadership ability of patrol leaders, and patrol leader following assigned directions.

THREE MEN FIND BODY OF DROWNED YOUTH

Dislodged from Deep Hole
Where Cable Had Caught It

BRISTOL MAN IN GROUP

The body of Leo Kilcoyne, 12, 3465 N. Third street, Philadelphia, was found in the Neshaminy Creek this morning, by three men, who voluntarily had been grappling for the body since 11 o'clock last night.

The body was dislodged from a hole in the creek where it had become entangled with an old cable. The three men started grappling last night shortly before midnight, and this morning put into shore for some breakfast. They started out again early this morning, and were working their way from the shore from the Bristol Township side of the Creek, pulling their boat by means of their hands grabbing an old cable attached to a tree limb. It was the men's intention to get out around some rocks, where they thought the body had perhaps become lodged. The weight of their pulling on the cable dislodged Kilcoyne's body which had become entangled in the cable in a "suck-hole," about 15 feet deep.

Word was immediately telephoned to Bristol police station, and to deputy coroner W. Furman Rong, here. Both responded to the call and viewed the body near the concrete bridge which carries Bristol pike over Neshaminy Creek. The body was found by Daniel Sackville, Bristol; Abram L. Snyder, and Harry Snyder, residents along the creek.

The men said they found the body about 200 feet below the point where Newport Road intersects Newportville Road.

The Kilcoyne boy had gone to a point along the Neshaminy Creek on Sunday, accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kilcoyne, and other members of the family. The lad and his father had been playing ball along the creek bank. The father returned to the parked car and a few minutes later called to Leo to give him candy which the mother had purchased at a nearby store. No response being received the father started to search for the lad. Inquiries were made at bungalows along the shore, thinking the boy might have strayed and been unable to find the family car. The father stated the boy had waded into the water once for the ball during the course of their game.

CONGRESS FACES LONG SESSION

Washington, D. C., June 5—An all summer session confronted Congress today if administration leaders attempt to carry out President Roosevelt's demands for enactment of a six point "must" legislative program. A militant Republican minority in the Senate virtually served notice on the Democrats they would battle enactment on each measure on the program if adjournment were postponed beyond Saturday. Indication was the bills would be debated for weeks unless the President agreed to modification of the program and a fixed date of adjournment. The program concerns the Senate chiefly since the House is under a literal "gag rule." Armed with a new "rule" House leaders will be able to pass any legislation they desire and as quickly as they desire. They showed their power by enacting a $1,175,000,000 unemployment relief appropriation after forty minutes' debate, at a rate of $29,450,000 a minute.

COUNTING VOTES TODAY

Philadelphia, June 5—Ballots of 2500 members of the Interstate Milk Producers' Association and 20,000 proxy votes today were being counted as independent and "old guard" factions of the organization both claimed victory in the most hectic directorship election in years. The outcome of the election will not be known until Thursday, it was declared today.

HARRISBURG, June 5 — (INS) — Pennsylvania's State Police comprise the direct law enforcement agency of the government, charged with preserving peace, detecting crime, arresting criminals, keeping records of criminal identification, and eliminating fire hazards.

All members of the State Police system are graduates of the State Police School where they are given instruction in modern anti-criminal methods.

Five other troops are located in strategic positions throughout the state, each with a captain, lieutenant, first sergeant, five sergeants, ten corporals and 65 enlisted men. The entire force is directed by a superintendent appointed by the Governor with consent of the Senate.

Pioneers in the use of radio, the State Police recently inaugurated a radio cruiser system in nearly a score of counties surrounding Harrisburg. The Department of Military Affairs is the state's depository for all military records pertaining to service of Pennsylvanians in the Civil, Spanish-American and World Wars as well as for records and all property of the National Guard. Directing its work is the Adjutant General of the state, named by the Governor.

Recently, the department had its duties temporarily increased by distributing the $50,000,000 Soldiers Bonus to Spanish-American and World War veterans and service men in the Boxer and Philippine Insurrections.

Within the department is the State Veterans Commission of five ex-service men who confer with the Adjutant General in administering laws pertaining to veterans and compile data relating to their activities. This Board administers relief funds allocated to veterans and certifies payment of the $200 state subsidy to school children between 16 and 21 whose fathers were killed in the World War.

BRISTOL HIGH NINE FORFEITS LEAGUE GAMES

Action Voluntary When Two Players Found To Be In Sr.
High Eight Semesters

BENSALEM IS NOW FIRST

The Bristol High School baseball nine has forfeited all games played in the Lower Bucks County Interscholastic League. This announcement was made this morning by Coach William Dougherty.

"There is a rule in the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Association," stated Dougherty, "which provides that no pupil shall be eligible to compete in any athletics in a senior high school more than six semesters beyond ninth grade. Then," continued Coach Dougherty, "when checking over the Bristol High School student list we found that two students who had repeated a year's course each, making eight semesters, had played on our own team so we at once notified the league officials and informed them of our findings and voluntarily forfeited all our games for the season."

At a recent meeting of the League, Coach Dougherty filed protest against the Morrisville High School team in which he presented a birth certificate showing that "Johnny" Mattis, star second sacker for the Bulldogs, was 20 years old last November.

The P. I. A. rules to which all high schools in the county belong, prohibit a boy from competing in high school games after he becomes 20 years of age. Morrisville school authorities explained at that time the school records showed that Mattis was only 19 years old and that a baptismal certificate which was part of the school records, gave the date of birth November 29, 1914. The birth certificate however shows the athlete was born in 1913.

Mr. Dougherty's protest of the Morrisville player was the aftermath of a number of happenings and complaints by other schools which led the officials to investigate the age of Mattis.

When the Bristol protest was allowed, throwing out the Morrisville games this put Bristol in the league lead but now, at the withdrawal of Bristol, Bensalem comes into first position and is declared the winner of the League.

SET TRAP FOR DILLINGER

Scottsburg, Indiana, June 5 — 150 heavily armed officers set a death trap to spring at daybreak today in the woodlands ten miles south of here where an outlaw band, believed to be led by John Dillinger, was reported surrounded after spilling a trail of blood through southern Indiana. One police officer was slain and another critically wounded as the desperadoes, believed three in number, sped southward toward Louisville with guns blazing. Their wild dash was halted when their car was wrecked 10 miles north of the Ohio river and they fled afoot under a rain of bullets.

Deputy Sheriff Harlow Amick, 25, Scottsburg, who surprised the outlaws when their car smashed into a store near Underwood, was shot in the head and died three hours afterward in St. Edwards Hospital at New Albany.

A few minutes earlier Policeman John Pfaffenberg, 38, was shot down with four bullets, at a road intersection on the outskirts of Seymour as he attempted to halt the gangsters. He remained in a critical condition at a hospital today. Little hope was held for his recovery.

Sheriffs quickly deputized scores of citizens and American Legion men and threw a cordon about the woods between Henryville and Underwood. Every available member of the Indiana State Police were rushed to the site. Sheriff Wilbur Amick, brother of the slain officer and his companion in the gunfight, voiced belief the outlaws were Dillinger and his pals, although they were not definitely identified.

Theft of license plates from an automobile at Knightstown Saturday night put officers on the alert but no trace of the gang was had until last night when the gunmen drove away from a filling station at Brownstown without paying for gasoline they had bought and flourishing weapons. The car had Ohio license tags.

The station attendant notified Seymour officers and night Policeman Pfaffenberg fifteen minutes later recognized the car by the license number, set his car across the road to block it and ordered the motorists to halt.

The bandits, however, swerved around the blockade, firing a fusillade of bullets. Four hit Pfaffenberg in the chest and right side and arm, but he managed to return the fire as he lay prone on the ground.

All the terrorists were armed with pistols and another revolver was found in the wreckage of their automobile but they did not have any machine guns, pursuing officers said.

HULMEVILLE DEFEATED IN EXTRA INNING GAME

De Boskey's Single Enables
Bristol A. A. To Take
Contest, 3 to 2

HOLLAND MASTERFUL

By T. M. Juno

"Butch" DeBoskey is making it a habit of breaking up ball games. Last night on Leedom's field, the Bristol A. A. backstop delivered a single in the eighth inning to enable his team to beat out the league-leading Hulmeville nine, 3-2. It was the first extra inning contest played by the Lower Bucks circuit.

DeBoskey's hit broke up a wonderful hurling match between Wilson Holland, of Bristol, and Ike Watson. Holland gave the league-leader but three hits and up until the eighth Bristol A. A. had connected for four. In the fatal inning, Heftman opened with a double. DeBoskey lifted a short fly which barely fell out of Conly's reach. The burly catcher of the A. A. then let a pitch go by and on the third throw slammed one down the third base line for a single to score Heftman.

Holland was masterful. The two runs scored by the 1933 champions came in the fifth inning and were the result of erratic fielding. Errors by. Continued on Page 4

Exonerate Drivers of Blame in Fatal Crashes

Drivers of two automobiles figuring in fatal accidents were exonerated by coroner's juries at inquests held last night in the municipal building here. Those exonerated were: Howard H. Shroun, 26, Bristol Township; and Norman H. Moore, Langhorne.

The automobile driven by Shroun struck Gertrude Oswald, 14, Modena, who was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gould at Edgely. The accident occurred on Bristol Pike at Edgely, Sunday, April 22nd.

Moore drove the car which figured in a crash one mile East of South Langhorne, May 6th, in which Frank Wladarsch, 21, of 2903 E. Venango street, Philadelphia, was killed.

Both inquests were conducted by Coroner John J. Sweeney, Doylestown, assisted by deputy coroner W. Furman Young. The same jury comprised of John D. Hess, foreman, Thomas Lawrence, Charles Lawrence, Ellwood Jackson, William Ewing, and Charles Hellyer, heard the evidence in both cases. Both accidents were declared to have been unavoidable, and both drivers were exonerated of all blame. Following the exonerations of Shroun, he appeared before justice of the peace James Guy and was released from bail in the case.

TWO MEN ON TRIAL ON CHARGE OF ARSON AND FIRING OF BARN

Jos. Volski and Jacob Sukert,
Hilltown Township,
Face Jury

THE CASE IS OUTLINED

Pair Implicated in Burning of Two Buildings On Newly-Purchased Farm

DOYLESTOWN, June 5 — Charged with arson and firing a barn, a parcel of a dwelling house, Joseph Volski and Jacob Sukert, of Hilltown Township, went on trial yesterday before President Judge Hiram H. Keller in Bucks County Criminal Court.

Members of the jury are as follows: Henry Nungesser, Perkasie; Willis Y. Alderfer, Telford; Warren Armstrong, Jr., Bristol; Maria Clymer, Eureka; Howard Dize, Quakertown R. D. 1; Sarah Cryer, Morrisville; John D. High, Dublin; Edward J. Ellison, Edgington; George Garretson, Bristol R. D. 1; Anna Moyer, Bristol R. D. 1; Edward S. Stevenson, Andalusia; Sarah Kershaw, Bristol R. D. 2.

In outlining the case to the jury, District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn reviewed the details and testimony that will be presented. The defendants were arrested by State Trooper Felix R. Gowan, of the Doylestown substation, and County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville.

The defendants are implicated in the burning of two buildings, one a dwelling house on June 12, 1930, and the other a barn on January 26, 1933.

At the time of the first fire, the dwelling burned was owned by Jacob Surket, Hilltown township. The prosecuting attorney told the jury that it will be shown that Surket bought the house from Christian Spruce for $2,800, and paid no cash, the entire account being transacted on a mortgage. "We will show that Surket then placed $4000 insurance on the house," Mr. Eastburn continued, "and that on June 12, 1930, the house was burned. Surket was attending church that night in Applebachsville, some distance away. We will show you that Joseph Volski, who worked for Surket for many years, set fire to the barn, and will show you what and who told him to do it. Volski will tell his own story on the witness stand."

"We will show you that Surket then collected $4000 insurance money and some additional insurance on personal property in the dwelling house."

Mr. Eastburn told the jury that on January 26, 1933, a barn on the Surket property was burned and that the Commonwealth will show that a short time before the fire the insurance companies holding the policy on the barn notified Surket that the policy would be cancelled January 30, 1933. The fire took place five days before that time, at 2:30 in the morning.

It will be shown, the prosecutor told the jury further, that a fire drill had been staged at the Surket place a short time before the fire on January 26, when Volski and other people on the farm were instructed by Surket what to do in case of a fire, and who was to rescue the cattle and who was to take out the machinery.

The Commonwealth's attorney further stated that it would be shown that a hearing received by Volski and administered by Surket, was of importance in this case.

STRICTER REGULATION

The necessity of effective steps being taken to check the "alarming increase in highway fatalities and injuries" has caused Thomas P. Henry, president of the Automobile Association of America, to propose a definite program for accomplishing this.

More strict regulation of the operation of automobiles is needed, he believes, if any progress in highway safety is to be made. A four-point program designed to accomplish this, he said, will be submitted to the annual convention of the association next month. It calls for:

1. Sound and uniform motor legislation, including a strong drivers' license law and a safety responsibility law.

2. Comprehensive and fundamental traffic engineering to keep the facilities for motor transport abreast of its needs.

3. Vigorous enforcement of all motor laws and regulations.

4. Systematic education of motorists and pedestrians, adults as well as children.

The increase in the number of road accidents, he stated, "can be ascribed in some degree, at least, to an increase in car operation in terms of mileage; to the millions of obsolete and poorly maintained cars on our streets and highways; to the growing inadequacy of our highways to carry the high-speed traffic of today and to the large number of youthful drivers operating family cars without the requisite discipline and restraint."

The greatest cause, however, he believed to be "in the fact that neither as a nation nor as communities have we organized on a basis that is anywhere near what is required to meet one of the most crucial problems."

It is obvious that somewhere something is lacking. Highway safety has become a national problem of critical importance. Despite laws and regulations, attempts to educate motorists in safety rules and other measures the slaughter continues to increase.

THREE CENT POSTAGE

The government's experiment of reducing local first class postage to two cents has boosted this class of mail.

The three cent postage has not worked as was expected. It was supposed that about everybody who used two-cent stamps, would continue to use those costing three cents when the rate was changed. But many of them have had their own ideas on that.

Concerns and corporations have many bills to distribute on the first of the month. Naturally, they began to experiment on other ways of doing this work. At a time when they were able to reduce their other costs quite drastically, it did not seem quite logical to them that the government should advance its postal charge 50 per cent. When the cost of anything is raised so sharply, people look for other ways of getting it done.

Also the good old fashioned postal card has grown popular again. The letter writer who was asked to pay 50 per cent more to the government, has concluded that instead he could save 50 per cent by using the card message. Increasing the costs of doing business is never a good way of restoring prosperity.

Why Not Transplant It, Uncle?
Give Industry a Chance To Grow, Too

THE banks, railroads and agriculture have recovered very nicely in Uncle Sam's R. F. C. window-box, which proves that the R. F. C. is an excellent agency for recovery.

Why then, does our good old Uncle keep withering industry in another flower-pot, where the soil doesn't seem to be half as stimulating or productive?

In the two years these other agencies have been receiving special governmental care, industry has been the victim of an unsuccessful experiment to pump life into it through the Federal Reserve system and the banks which themselves are under treatment.

Now is the time to cease experimenting with industry and put it into the same nutritious soil that has proved so beneficial to the others. Give it a chance to grow—the same chance the banks, railroads and agriculture have had.

Isn't industry equally as important? Doesn't it provide payrolls for millions? Doesn't it mean their very existence?

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, if given the power, can put industry back on its feet very quickly. Two years of Federal Reserve and banking aid have produced very little results.

GIFTS for GRADUATION

GRADUATION! You have a son or daughter who is going to pass an important milestone in this business of getting on in the world. You are a bit puffed up with pride. You feel a glow of satisfaction that is going to express itself in a gift. What shall it be?

Tradition has nominated certain things for graduation gifts—a watch for the son—a ring for the daughter. Fine! But the younger generation has outmoded a number of venerable traditions. Maybe, in the case of your boy or girl, something less usual would be more welcome. How to find out?

One modern parent we know used this gift-giving plan at Christmas. He casually introduced a discussion of advertisements with his son and daughter. They looked through the newspapers together. The conversation was directed toward advertising. It developed into a discussion of products.

This parent discovered his young folks knew a lot more about merchandise than he dreamed. They knew modes, styles, fashions, trends, trade names, the value of advertised responsibility. They had preferences and judgments formed on facts. He said it was the most successful Christmas their family ever had.

Try this little scheme on your graduates this year. It will make your gift-giving more successful all around.

"MA CINDERELLA"
by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS

Years ago, Ann Haskel, dominant Ozark farmer, sent her fatherless son, John Herbert, away in the care of Judge Shannon, so that the boy could be educated properly. No one knew the heartache this sacrifice caused Ann. In John Herbert's place, Ann raised a ne'er-do-well stepson, Jeff Todd. Ann, Jeff, and Nance Jordan, Ann's housekeeper, live together on the farm. Following graduation from college, John Herbert returns home. The young man is stunned to find his mother a crude mountain woman, but he overlooks this in gratitude for all she did for him. Ann, on the other hand, is disappointed that her son is anxious to write instead of practice law. Diane Carrol, a young artist, who values her work above her wealth, which she keeps secret, and John Herbert become boon companions. One day, Jeff, jealous of John Herbert, tries in vain to get his stepbrother to fight. Ann tells John Herbert he will have to fight Jeff or there won't be any living for him or her. She is as puzzled by her son's ignorance of backwoods ethics as he is bewildered by her attitude. Ann hears the vacationists at the lodge jokingly call her "Ma Cinderella" and resents their ridicule. Diane encourages John Herbert to continue with his writing, but he realizes it will be years before he has a decent income and can repay his mother. The lodge guests poke fun at his mother. This makes John Herbert realize that, with his responsibilities, Diane is beyond his reach. She, however, thinks of him constantly. Never before had she been so attracted to any man and John Herbert needed her. Ann comes upon Diane in the glade and tells the artist she has come to settle with her. Asked if she wants to marry John Herbert, Diane replies: "Your son never mentioned the subject." "Shucks!" retorts Ann, "your kind don't never marry no man less'n he's got money." Little did Ann realize that Diane herself was wealthy and wanted someone to love her for herself alone. The girl frankly tells Ann it is a pity John Herbert could not have had a mother with intelligence enough to understand and appreciate him and that Ann is spoiling that for which she herself had sacrificed so much. Ann warns Diane to stay away from her son. Later an automobile with a liveried chauffeur drives up to Ann's door.

CHAPTER XXIV

Concealed by the house itself from those in front, the two women hurried to the kitchen. Curiously they peered through the window. The chauffeur was now standing beside the car. The gentleman was not in sight.

"Hit's a big car, ain't hit?" whispered Nance. "An' see, that feller's got on a uniform like I said. Sure looks like he war an officer of some kind."

A loud knocking sounded through the house.

"Other man's at the door," whispered Ann.

The knocking sounded again.

"I reckon you'd best go an' see what they're a-wantin'," directed Ann, grimly. "But fetch me that gun from beside the fireplace first."

From behind the half-open kitchen door Ann listened while Nance cautiously opened the front door and received the stranger's greeting. He was a well-fed, well-groomed, mild-eyed gentleman of perhaps fifty years, and his manner as he removed his hat and bowed fascinated the backwoods woman.

"How do you do, madam," he said precisely.

"Howdy."

"Are you Mrs. Haskel?"

Nance might be charmed, but she was not off her guard.

"What air you a-wantin' of her?"

The stranger smiled. "If you are Mrs. Haskel I will explain."

"You can do your explainin' to me."

The gentleman's tone was a shade more precise. "My business is with Mrs. Haskel. Is she at home?"

Nance stared at him silently.

"May I come in?"

"Not till I know who you be an' what you're a-wantin'."

He offered his card.

Nance, who could not read a word, received the bit of pasteboard as if it were a bomb.

"I am James Levering," explained the stranger. "I represent the Fidelity Trust and Savings Bank of Holmesburg, Pennsylvania. I assure you it is quite necessary that Mrs. Haskel see me."

"I'll call Ann," Nance returned, doubtfully, and, with admirable caution, closed the door.

While Mr. Levering waited the two backwoods women in the kitchen held a whispered consultation.

"Holmesburg, Pennsylvania," murmured Ann. "I mind Herb's paw used to tell 'bout sich a place. His folks settled thar in the early days. Levering? Never heared tell of him, though."

"Do you reckon he's a revenuer?"

"Revenuer? Shucks! He's somebody from that thar bank like hit says on the card. He's a banker; that's how come he's got a automobile like that with a driver all togged out in pitcher clothes."

When Ann appeared in the doorway Mr. Levering regarded her with an air of mild triumph. "You are Mrs. Haskel?"

"I be."

The mountain woman endured the stranger's scrutiny with a countenance which might have been carved from stone.

"Pardon me, Mrs. Haskel, but my business with you is of such a nature that it can scarcely be transacted here on your doorstep."

"Come in, mister."

Mr. Levering called to the chauffeur: "My briefcase, please," and entered the Haskel living-room.

Nance slouched in from the kitchen and sidled into the nearest chair.

While waiting for his briefcase the stranger looked about the room. Evidently he had never before seen the interior of a backwoods dwelling. Then his attention became fixed on the well-filled bookshelves in the corner. "Ah—a library!"

"They ain't mine; they're my son's," said Ann.

"Oh yes—yes, of course. May I ask your son's name?"

"We uns ain't got no call to be ashamed of the name, mister. Hit's John Herbert Haskel."

"John Herbert, I see—yes, yes, John Herbert, of course. Named after his grandfather John, and his grandfather's brother Herbert. Very good, very good."

At this Ann drew a little back and, unnoticed by Levering, who was taking his briefcase from the chauffeur, exchanged wondering looks with Nance.

As Levering dismissed the chauffeur Ann asked, harshly, "What might your business be with me, mister?"

"I am here to see you, Mrs. Haskel, about an estate which our company is holding in trust until certain terms of the trust are fulfilled. If you do not mind I should like to ask a few necessary questions."

"I reckon you ain't got no authority to make me answer. You ain't no officer of any kind, be you?"

"Certainly not, Mrs. Haskel. I am merely the legal representative of our company. I assure you it is to your interest—that is, I think it is—for you to assist us with any information you may have."

"What be you aimin' to find out?"

"We are endeavoring to find the legal heir, or heirs, to the estate of John Haskel."

"John Haskel war my boy's grandpaw, an' my boy air the last of the Haskels livin'."

"And you are Ann Haskel—the widow of Edward Haskel and the mother of this boy, John Herbert, are you?"

As the lawyer put this question his eyes were fixed on the mountain woman's face in the manner of an attorney examining a difficult witness. Ann Haskel gazed back at him, wondering, suspicious, defiant.

"I sure am, mister."

Nance Jordan muttered an exclamation under her breath, and Ann whirled on her with a look of such fierce warning that she shrank as from a blow. Levering was opening his briefcase and did not notice.

Producing a photograph of a group of four people, the lawyer handed it to Ann.

"Mrs. Haskel, can you identify the people in that photograph?"

The mountain woman answered, slowly, "I know who they be if that's what you mean."

Nance slouched forward to look over Ann's shoulder, and Ann turned her head to stare at her companion meaningly.

"Who are they, please?" asked the lawyer.

With her eyes on the photograph the mountain woman answered, deliberately: "That thar's a pitcher of my sister an' me an' our men, Henry an' Ed Haskel. Hit war took the time we uns war married back in Greenville, Kentucky, I got two jest like hit."

"May I see your photographs?"

Ann considered a moment, then: "I don't reckon hit'd hurt nothin'. You git 'em Nance."

Silently Nance brought, from some hiding-place in another part of the house, an old pasteboard box secured with many wrappings of twine. From the box Ann took two photographs—duplicates of the one in Levering's possession.

"One of these war mine," she explained as she handed the photographs to the lawyer; "the other war my sister's. Hit war with her things when she died."

"They are identical," remarked

Levering, in a tone of mild satisfaction.

"They sure be. Whar'd you git yours, mister?"

"I found it in Greenville among the old photographer's effects," the lawyer answered. "What was your sister's name, Mrs. Haskel?"

Again the lawyer, busy with some papers which he was selecting from the briefcase, failed to notice an exchange of looks between the two backwoods women. Nance shook her head in frightened protest. Ann scowled a warning threat.

"My sister's name war Grace," said Ann.

"Can you tell me anything of your husband's family history, Mrs. Haskel?"

"Wal, I know that all the Haskels lived, first, somewhars way back east—New York, mebbe, or mebbe jest war farther back than that. Wharever hit war, Ed an' Henry war borned thar. Hit war after the boys war growed up they come to Greenville. Seems like their folks moved to somewhars in Ohio or Pennsylvania 'bout the same time. I heared Ed name some place like the one whar's on your card."

"What was their business?"

"Ed an' Henry war farm-hands. They war a-workin' in our neighborhood when me an' Grace first met-up with 'em."

"I mean, in what business were the two brothers, John and Herbert, the fathers of Henry and Ed, engaged?"

"Oh! I've heared Ed tell as how his pappy war in some kind of business—I don't know rightly jest what; some kind of tradin' I reckon. Uncle Herb he war a farmer sarge as we uns. He died 'fore me an' Grace war married to the Haskel boys."

"Did these Haskel brothers, John and Herbert, the fathers of the two cousins that you and your sister married—did they have large families?"

"They each had children—I don't know how many. But I know that they all died 'cep'tin' two, one year when scarlet fever war bad. I've heared Ed and his cousin Henry tell 'bout hit an' how they war all that war left."

"Edward was John's son, and Henry was the son of John's brother Herbert?"

"That's right, mister. That's jest the way hit war. Them two Haskel boys, all that the fever left, war own cousins, an' me an' my sister war married to 'em all at the same time. That's when them pitchers war took. Them's our weddin' clothes."

"Very good," said Levering. "And what was your name before you were married, Mrs. Haskel?"

"Our name war Bowen. Our pappy war William Bowen. We war borned on a rented farm ten mile north of Greenville."

Levering, consulting his notes, murmured: "And these two sisters, Grace and Ann Bowen, married the cousins, Edward and Henry Haskel."

"Hits jest like I'm a-tellin' you, mister. This year's our pitchers took jest as we war when we all stood up together."

"Who was Henry Haskel's father?"

"Henry's pappy war Herbert Haskel. An' old Herb's brother John, he war Ed's pappy."

"Exactly," said the lawyer. "Very good. And now, if you please, Mrs. Haskel, which of these girls in the photograph is your sister Grace?"

With Nance Jordan looking over her shoulder, Ann named the persons in the photograph, identifying the different individuals.

From his briefcase Levering produced another photograph—an old tintype. "Who is this, Mrs. Haskel?"

"That's me." The mountain woman turned over the things in the pasteboard box in her lap. "I got one hyear of Grace, an' hyear's another of Grace's ma, Henry. This one's me, an' hyears one of Ed, little John Herbert's pappy."

Levering took the photographs to compare them with the one in his possession. "I see. Yes, this is you and your husband, Edward, the son of John, and the father of young John Herbert. Now Mrs. Haskel, suppose you tell me about your life after you were married to Edward Haskel in Greenville, Kentucky. By the way, you have your marriage certificate, have you?"

Silently Ann produced two marriage certificates from the box. "Thar hit is, mister, an' thar's Grace's too."

While the lawyer examined the documents and compared them with his notes, the two backwoods women took advantage of the opportunity to exchange significant looks. Nance frightened and protesting, Ann scowled a silent command for her companion to keep out of whatever it was that was going on.

STANDAWAY WHEEL SLEEVES ON WHITE GOWN OF LILY PONS

By Nadia De Beand
(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — Lily Pons, the diminutive soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returned to her native town of Paris to give a single recital at the Theatre des Champs Elysees. Smartest Paris turned out for the occasion.

Miss Pons looked as charming as ever in white. But it was the cut of her gown that was particularly smart. She had the stiff standaway wheel sleeves which she obviously likes. The skirt was very tight to the knees, with a tiny double frill around the hips. Below the knees, the skirt literally billowed all round.

The second person to attract great attention from the audience was Jacqueline Duhac, Sasha Guitry's new leading woman. Tall, slender, dark and pretty, she wore a very simple white gown, also voluminous below the knees, with a capelet formed of silver fox.

"LETTUCE CONTAINS MANY FOOD VALUES"—MISS ARMSTRONG

By Rhondena A. Armstrong
(Home Economics Representative)

Many food treasures are hidden in the green leaves of lettuce just ready from the garden.

Lettuce contains iron for building red blood, lime and phosphorus for building bones and teeth, vitamin A which is necessary for the health of all ages and to protect the body against respiratory infection, and vitamins B and G which stimulate the appetite and are necessary for the proper functioning of the digestive tract. The greener the lettuce leaves the more vitamin A they contain.

Lettuce may be served in a variety of ways; as lettuce salad or as a spring salad combined with green onions, radishes, cress or dandelion; wilted, with a bacon dressing, to which may be added a hard cooked egg; or as cream of lettuce soup which is always a favorite with the grown-ups as well as the children. Harvest good health from your garden by serving lettuce to your family every day.

ST. ANN'S EKED OUT
VICTORY OVER 'INDIES'

Rallying for two runs in the sixth inning, the St. Ann's A. A. team eked out a close victory over the Independents last night on St. Ann's field. Final score was 6-5. It was a single by Mike DeRisi that gave the purple and gold their victory.

In the sixth frame, Whyno opened by drawing a pass. He stole second. Fields beat out a hit to short and Whyno stopped at third. DiBlassio whiffed. Oriola's short fly fell behind shortstop for a single, scoring Whyno and placing Fields on third. DeRisi then lined his third hit of the game between second and third for the winning base knock.

The fray was a see-saw battle from the start. The Independents made several short spurts which brought them on even terms with their opponents, and in the early part of the sixth had scored three runs which gave them a slight edge. In this inning, Gallone singled, and Tershen also hit, sending Gallone to third. Monachello bunted to Whyno and Gallone was nipped at the plate. Wright grounded out, Tershen counting. Tamburello beat out a hit to short. Avella did likewise, tallying Monachello. Lasprella's hard hit grounder went straight to DeBlassio for a put-out.

WHITE ELEPHANTS WIN
FOURTH LEAGUE BATTLE

The White Elephants won their fourth League game last night in an interesting contest on Sullivan field by score of 4 to 3.

Three errors in the first inning almost proved a loss for the Elephants and robbed White of a shut out victory. But in the sixth inning, Bailey singled, Hamm walked. Then came a double steal and Speel singled to score both runners and scored on McDevitt's double to left. Speil and Hughes lead the winners with two hits each.

Hulmeville Defeated In
Extra Inning Game

Stromp and Riola gave the Hulmevilles their tallies. Incidentally Watson made two of the losers' three hits while Holland made two of the winners' six hits.

Bristol counted a tally in the second when DeBoskey walked, was sacrificed to second by Stromp and scored on Riola's double. Hulmeville scored twice to take the lead in the fifth but Mulholland's team came back to deadlock the count in its half of the inning when Brescia reached base on an error, advanced on Holland's hit and scored on Comly's misplay.

WANT DEBT REDUCED

Washington, D. C., June 5.—Under the leadership of Great Britain, Europe today started to make a determined effort to force the United States to agree to a drastic reduction of the $10,000,000,000 owed American taxpayers.

At a cost of her traditional reputation on integrity, that of honoring her debts, Britain joined the debt defaulting nations of Europe in the hope of forcing this government into considering a new settlement of the drastically reduced debts.

The British government informed the State Department of its intention to suspend all future payments until a new settlement is reached.

FARMER IS KIDNAPED

Underwood, Ind., June 5.—Ralph Shields, 37, a farmer of near here, was kidnapped early today by a man believed to be one of the mobsters who last night killed an officer and wounded another in a running gun fight in southern Indiana. Shields was forced at pistol point, to give his automobile to the bandit and then to accompany him in it.

DENY CREDIT BEING DAMAGED

Harrisburg, June 5.—Former Judge Robert S. Gawthrop, chairman of the State Liquor Control Board, and Wm.

A. Sponsler, 3d, secretary, today denied the assertion of a New York fiduciary house that the Commonwealth's credit was being damaged by the Board's present inability to meet all its financial obligations. The charges were made in a letter to Governor Pinchot from N. DuCret & Company, New York, acting as fiduciary for several liquor importing factions.

The libellant is a resident of 53 Union street, Morrisville, and the respondent lives at 142 Hillcrest ave., Morrisville.

Charging his wife, Eleanor Mawson, with desertion, James F. Mawson has filed a libel in divorce. The Mawsons were married September 11, 1926, in Philadelphia.

Mr. Mawson resides in New Britain township. The respondent's address is 4313 Larchwood avenue, Philadelphia. The desertion is alleged to have taken place May 15, 1932.

Magazine Explosion Is Cause of Seven Deaths

NURMAN, Okla., June 5.—(INS)—Explosion of a dynamite magazine today had blasted out the lives of seven of eight members of a seismograph crew bounding geological formations for oil.

Two hundred pounds of dynamite stacked beside the roadway exploded accidentally, blowing the seven young geologists to bits. The eighth, suffered severe shock.

Using heavy blasts of explosives, the group was taking seismograph soundings of geological formations in northern McClain County for possible oil development.

All of the bodies were badly mutilated by the explosion. Windows were broken and partitions damaged in a house 200 yards from the blast.

NEED SAFE-CRACKER

ZANESVILLE, O.—(INS)—A good safe-cracker is needed here to open the vault in the city engineer's office because when Carl Spencer was dismissed recently, he took the keys with him and has refused to surrender them to his successor, George R. Evans. In the meantime, Evans has called in safe experts and resorted to other methods, but with no avail.

SUNDAY DINNER
SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

EAST meets West and South meets North on this week's fruit and vegetable counters. Strawberries from Virginia and California cherries, Jersey asparagus and Texas beets, Puerto Rican pineapple and Long Island spinach are only a few foods from the wide spread gardens that feed us.

It is fortunate for those of us on restricted food budgets that as meats go up, fruits, vegetables and fish become cheaper, and more plentiful. Cabbage, spinach, green beans, onions and carrots are excellent low cost vegetables, asparagus and peas are medium cost, and corn and lima beans expensive.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following menus.

Low Cost Dinner

Chuck Pot Roast with Onions
Boiled Potatoes Cole Slaw
Bread and Butter
Banana Shortcake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Baked Ham Parsley Potatoes
Creamed Cabbage
Bread and Butter

State Police Law Enforcing
Agency of Pa. Government

The department has jurisdiction of all state-owned or leased armories and over the State Soldiers and Sailors Home for Indigent Veterans at Erie.

The State Athletic Commission is a part of this department. It is composed of three members appointed by the Governor for two-year terms with the Adjutant General as ex officio member. The Board supervises all boxing, sparring and wrestling matches held for purses or where admission is charged.

Last of the departments to be discussed in this series is the Department of Property and Supplies, which is the state's general purchasing agent and caretaker of state property. All purchases, with some exceptions made by law, of more than $50 are made by this department for any other department, agency, board or institution of the government.

State-owned automobiles are assigned, state employees bonded, state printing arranged for, leases negotiated and state buildings policed and maintained by the department.

The Department of Military Affairs was allocated $2,314,512 for the 1933-35 biennium, including $700,000 for National Guard support. The appropriation to the State Police was $2,491,500 and that of the Department of Property and Supplies $4,280,090. (The final article discusses the independent boards.)
